Introduction

The following chapters will introduce you to a concept that will change your view of intelligence, of reading, to the very core of learning. Dr. Shannon Panzo introduces a concept of eidetic (photographic) memory in a way that will shock you – it will make you re-consider how you have “learned” to read, how your memory works and how you can grasp the very essence of life.

While the subject is actually how to read, grasp and understand knowledge in great grasps, you should read these pages carefully, and absorb what the author is placing before you. Prepare to be shocked, amused and even overwhelmed!

1: Great Things Happen Here!

That one statement says it all. The people that take up the gauntlet and pursue Brain Management training have greatness in store for them. Whether they realize it or not, these people are leaders. They may not be leaders of a country, or even a neighborhood, but they all possess leadership qualities. They are doing something for themselves that will increase their intrinsic value to their community. I have the privilege to indoctrinate them to a different way of doing things – the smart way.

Imagine a system that is easy to learn, can be applied to anything, and will increase your happiness by a factor of ten. Some of my clients are so thrilled by the results that their happiness factor has increased thousands of times over.

Why do people seek us out? I have heard so many reasons. One of these is, “I just knew that something like this had to exist. I have taken many trainings looking for it, but I have never found it before, until now.” Another that I hear is, “When the student is ready, the teacher will appear.” It really doesn't matter what profound statements people make about this training. What really matters is that people receive a system that is easy to learn, and it works.

There are many different reasons why someone wants to learn our system; they easily number in the thousands. Some may approach the system for only one reason, but after engaging the training, they quickly find it has a plethora of applications. You are only limited by your belief systems and your imagination.

Belief Systems

Belief systems are the old baggage you come with. You drag them along like a ball and chain. Most of these you don't even realize you have, and you also don't know that they are interfering with your ability to achieve success. If you have a belief that runs counter to what you want to see happen, no matter what effort you put behind the attempts, it will not happen until you take care of what is blocking you. We teach you how to deal with your belief systems, so they stop interfering. Some of these beliefs may be so significant, that just by dealing with one of them may help you completely change your outlook on life.

Being positive just isn't good enough. Being positive will lighten your heart, but if you are not able to address the things that are holding you back, you find the road to your goal impossible to travel. Why did the chicken cross the road? Did it want a better life, or was it just fleeing the life it perceives it already had? What are the chances the chicken will encounter the same problems it wanted to escape from on the other side? Actually, the answer is: almost definitely. I could explore this fun little aside for a while, but I do want to conserve your time.

Your Imagination

Your imagination is the most powerful creative force you have available. You have the ability to create the stuff that dreams are made of. The sky is no longer your limit. You have a universe of possibilities. Isn't it time you learn how to shape it into creating a phenomenal life for yourself and those closest to you? You can. The only thing holding you back is you. But you need a device that allows you to remedy the ills that get in your way.

I just received a wonderful compliment from a client I want to share with you. To preface this, I need to explain that the client purchased ZOX Pro Training (<http://ZOXpro.com>) and had a few questions. Before taking the training, he had purchased many different things over the Internet. This is what he said about his experience:

“I just wanted to say that I really appreciate you taking the interest in my achieving success in ZOXing and sharing some of your insights on how to ACCELERATE my progress.

To be frank I wasn't expecting you or anyone to offer to call me up about my submission concerning my email about my experience with the course. In fact I was expecting a email reply if I got a reply at all.

Shannon, the fact that you took a keen interest in me, speak volumes about how much you care that your customers receive full value from their purchase, moreover that you really are concerned that each & every purchaser of ZOX Pro successfully train in Mental Photography and get the results that are spoken of in the advertisement. Further, you are there for them should they have any questions about the program of training. Where some firms simply “Don't know you anymore once they got your money!” Your company stands out as an Exemplary example of how a business should operate, a prime example of Customer Service !!

Once again, thank you very much for your valuable suggestions & insights.

*Yours in ZOXing, Gregory Smith, Los Angeles, CA”

This is what makes it all worthwhile. I do whatever I can to support my clients. Even though they have vested themselves with the least-expensive of our training programs, they are still my treasured clients. My intent is to always offer the best service I can.

Thank you for allowing me some of your precious time to share with you some of the experiences I have from this side of things. It may give you some perspective of how you may choose to conduct business, or how you look at those conducting the business.

As a reward to you for reading all of this, I would like to extend a gift to you. Please take the opportunity to gain a Top Concentration Training at NO COST to you. Please visit <http://mindpower.zoxpro.com>. Don't worry! I am real, and the training is real too.

2: Discover Mind Power, Mental Pictures And Relevant Events

It all begins with your ability to use your brain, especially your Photographic Memory. This is a real experience I recently had that expresses how much fun it can be when you have good access to your photographic memory and the mental agility to play connect-the-dots with relevant information.

During a conversation, I needed an analogy for the differences among what we perceive we want, what can happen when we think we think we know what we want, what we get, and then when things go terribly wrong. (This often happens in forming relationships.) So, out of my infinite resources a saying pops up. This saying is old, outdated, but very valid for what I was disclosing to the other person:

“Don’t live under the jackfruit tree.”
“Wow!” you say, “That is obscure!”

When jackfruit is ripe, you can open it up and find many small fruit inside. It’s like opening a treasure chest. But these fruit grow in a pod. Each pod can each weigh up to 40 kilos, or about 85 pounds.

When these fruit pods fall, it reminds us of manna from Heaven. On the other hand, if one falls on you, you could be seriously injured or even die from the experience. So, what we are looking at is a mixed blessing, or too much of a good thing. That is why it makes it such an appropriate analogy.

You may find yourself really wanting something with all your heart. It may even come your way or be given to you. Once it is yours, though, you may find it is a lot more than you bargained for. How can you prevent this from happening? Learn to use your mind. Your brain is truly powerful. Use it! If you know how to ask, it can steer you clear of the roughest waters.

ZOXing, or Mental Photography, not only taps into your photographic memory, it can also give you the balance you need, so you don't find yourself living under the jackfruit tree.

3: Do You Think About Time?

Time...

Ask yourself: Do you feel like you never get enough done? Do you procrastinate? Do you ever wish that 'time' was something you could buy more of? Do you take time to enjoy life?

For the time being: There are a lot of renditions of this perturbing quote: "Do not do today what you can put off until tomorrow."

Well, "Time is of the essence!"

When you procrastinate, things that need to be done are building up. Eventually, something is going to happen. Sometimes it happens in very uncomfortable ways. Make it a positive step to achieve the things you have been putting off. Don't worry, they have not gone away. (Consider the "Sword of Damocles")

When it comes to speeding up getting things done, turn them over to your subconscious mind to work on. Amazingly, things will get done faster.

What? You don't know how to turn things over to your subconscious? Where would you go to find out? What would you do? Who would you ask? Would you ask your neighbor? (WARNING: Joke ahead!) Maybe you should ask the police to help you find your subconscious. That would make for an interesting police report. (Joke ended.)

How about asking us? We have been teaching people how to turn objectives over to their subconscious for over 35 years.

Time is passing you by.

So, are you going to just let time pass you by? Or, are you going to do something?

Someday, I may tell you what time is. But for now, it is important that you start observing what it is, and what it can do for you. It is as precious as life itself.

4: Subliminal Advertising Is Man's Greatest Invention

Gotcha!...

I would love to see the expression on your face right now...

Just when you thought I was sending you another “bleep” about Internet Marketing, I am giving you critical information about your brain. This is all about how your mind works!

When you learned to read, you were told that you had to give up the infantile way you had learned so well up to then. As you learn to read, you disconnect from your natural photographic (eidetic) memory. But you never lose it. You have just lost touch with it. Inadvertently, you have given up your ability to access your photographic memory.

Fortunately, all is not lost. While you have been reading inefficiently, you have unknowingly let a monster run your subconscious in the background. This monster is exercising something that you misplaced - access to your photographic memory. This monster is also known as “subliminal advertising.”

There is a monster in your closet!

Why do I refer to subliminal advertising as a monster? Most of you know the stories of how subliminal advertising started back in 1957. You must also realize the first products that used subliminal messages in their advertising also became the biggest names in their industries. Most businesses today believe the only way to stay competitive in their market is to continuously pummel you with subliminal advertising. It is estimated that the subliminal advertising industry does business in the hundreds of billions of dollars each year. That is more than what some countries are worth.

So, yes, I am justified in saying that subliminal advertising is a monster, a large monster that eats holes in your wallet.

You thought you were doing nothing; just sitting there watching TV, reading magazines, and listening to your favorite music. But, you were wrong. The subliminal advertising that takes its toll on your wallet every day has actually been exercising and refreshing something very precious – your photographic memory! Subliminal advertising does the job it is meant to do because it uses the photographic memory as its medium for programming – your subconscious – to do its bidding.

Shopping Addiction and Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder

So what is subliminal advertising doing for you? Is it making you work harder and longer to ‘satisfy the beast? Does it make you buy things you just gotta have? I remember the lady that had 27 sets of china. Most of them were still in the unopened box they came in. What about the guy that has several hundred golf clubs. He can only use so many when he goes golfing, and his name is not Tiger Woods. Look around, we all know someone like this. It may even be you.

Is this behavior a little close to obsessive-compulsive disorder? Maybe, or just maybe subliminal advertising is accelerating the public’s buying patterns, and pushing people over the edge to become collectors?

So now that you have realized that most people have a monster in their closet that exercises the photographic memory and keeps it nimble and quick. Let's go back to a solution to help you reconnect that unique thing that you were born with and never lose it.

Gain Control

Fear not! Enter Mental Photography (ZOXing)! Mental Photography asserts itself to give you access to what you have misplaced: The “remote control” to your photographic memory. Once you reconnect and gain control over your access, you can also affect the other things (subliminal advertising) that influence you.

So, thanks to subliminal advertising – your monster in your closet – you still have a well-oiled photographic memory to tap into!

You see the PROBLEM.

You know the SOLUTION.

DO SOMETHING about it!

5: I Will Show You How Information Conquers Fear

This is the first part of a series of articles about conquering your fears. In this scenario, I have the opportunity to share an experience with you.

Applying Mental Photography and a Lesson on the Australian King Brown Snake, or, No Teacher Like Experience

Mind To Mind – The Brain Accelerator is designed so that you can learn from it. Brain Management has an extraordinary device called Mental Photography. It gives you availability to remember vast amounts of all types of information, as well as other things.

Whenever I watched nature shows on TV (yes, I do watch a bit of TV – but selectively), quite often I would come across a show featuring the denizens of Australia. In America, we get the slant that Australia has very dangerous wildlife. There are so-o-o many deadly things! Australia is dangerous. Australia has 30 venomous snakes, and the two deadliest snakes in the world reside there. The deadliest snake is the Inland Taipan (Oxyuranus microlepidotus). Luckily, it is not around where I am. I hear it is up to three meters long and aggressive. The number two snake is the King Brown (Pseudechis australis), also somewhat aggressive. Other deadly denizens include the most poisonous spider in the world, the Sydney Funnelweb (Atrax robustus). (Always shake your boots and gloves out before putting them on.) And, of course, there are things like crocodiles, which eat people. This is all before you get into the oceans and go for a swim or a dive.

Because of this type of publicity, thrill seekers go to Australia to search out these dangerous animals for the adrenaline rush. Others, like me, develop a sense of paranoia. Some fear can be healthy. Too much fear can be paralyzing!

Take Control of Your Fear

Here is where the fun begins. I am a Mental Photographer! (Also known as a ZOXer.) I know that I can assimilate vast amounts of clear technical and defined information in a very short amount of time. I marched myself down to the local library, known to be a good source of unbiased information, picked up a bunch of books on the poisonous snakes and spiders of Australia. I Mentally Photographed all of these books in 30-45 minutes.

So, in 30-45 minutes, I have taken my 'fear' (on a level of about 8.5 on a scale of 10) and lessened it down to a 'healthy respect' level of about three. What has changed? I have gone from fearful to healthy respect in less than one hour. The only thing I have done is gained specific information about what I feared. And I found out heaps of other great information at the same time!

I now live in Australia, where the King Brown snake lives, and yes, you do see them, and yes they are excessively deadly. I have heard that single drop of their venom could kill several adult humans, unless they receive immediate medical attention. I found that while a lot of snakes are rather pretty to look at, the King Brown is very plain. It quite often just looks like a stick lying there. You only see it when it decides to move. The point that I found most interesting is the inside of the mouth: It is pitch black!

Dangerous and Deadly

By the way, if you come upon one and it is within striking distance, don't move! Not out of paralysis, but out of choice. Their vision is not that good. Humans are not their preferred source of food, so your smell is not going to entice them to bite you, but they do react to movement and vibrations. They see you as a shadowy figure. If you stand still, it will most likely think you are just another tree. Just hope it doesn't decide it wants to climb a tree at that moment; in that case, you might be standing there a while. It usually prefers to stay on the ground.

It's also a good idea, when you are going for a walk out in the bush, to wear pants such as jeans and leather boots. They don't need to be heavy duty. The venomous fangs of the King Brown are small, and their position in the mouth does not allow for a deep penetrating bite. So, things like good walking shoes and thicker pants usually prevent the strike from getting to your skin.

You are probably asking, "Why are you telling me all about the King Brown Snake?" What I am showing you is how much extra information I picked up (and I picked up more than this too) by using Mental Photography instead of reading. Mental Photography gives me so much information in so little time! That is why it is effective. If I wanted to, I could go on for an hour or so, just on one or two snakes.

Where Can you Learn Mental Photography?

No matter which level of training you attend, ZOX Pro, Brain Management Home Study, Brain Management Seminar, or eBrain Management Executive Seminar, the Mental Photography is a core component to the teachings. Think of it as a 'decoder' program. It enables your brain and mind to strengthen and accelerate to make the functions of your brain available to you. These are functions you were born with, never lose, but usually never use.

This article is a precursor for part 2. Part 2 of this series is very important for you to navigate the world we live in right now. I will get you started by giving you some good information, but it's up to you to do the rest.

Here's to your Brain Power!

6: Here Is More Proof Your Photographic Memory Is Just Hiding!

Information Conquers Fear! (Part 2)

In a World Gone Nuts! Fear-Mongers Caught in the Backlash! Good Lessons in Observation

Strangeness is a state of life. You are strange to everyone around you because you are not them and they are not you. You are an individual with individual thoughts. You may think about things the same way, but, there will be differences. Observation can be a great teacher.

Let's look back about ten to twenty years ago. Think of how the relationships between countries were, where the stresses were. Even though you may not have thought so, you were really happy back then; you may find that you were a lot happier then than you are right now. What stresses have changed? What realities are you buying into? Has the evening news replaced the Disney Channel? Is the media dictating the way you feel in life? Are the politicians out of control?

There has been an emergence take place – the fear-mongers have arrived! And they are strong! They are strong because they spin their tales of fear and woe to the masses. Mob psychology is the way that our societies are moved today. Mob psychology relies on the fact that the masses are more powerful than the individual, that any individual opposing the mob will simply be 'run over', and that joining the mob is much easier than defying it.

Who are the fear-mongers, and what are they doing? Sometimes, it's easier to tell who the enemy is by following the path of destruction left in their wake. Let's take a moment to reverse engineer from what is happening today to the past. Today, we are experiencing a global economic crisis. Why? Everybody was doing what they were supposed to be doing. The banks were doing their job, the corporations were doing their job, the workers were doing their job ... or so it appeared.

The Fear-Mongers' Mistake

The banks have been experiencing a tension not felt before, so their reaction to it was wrong. They didn't understand the simple dynamics of 'fear'. Fear, once it takes hold, causes paralysis of the mind. When you experience this paralysis of the mind, it translates into everything you do. You believe you are still doing all the things you have always done, but it's an illusion. Your personal system starts breaking down – depression sets in.

Mob Mentality Rules – Like a Well-Oiled Machine

Take this understanding of fear and multiply it by the mob mentality. If the mob has been persuaded to be full of fear, the mob freezes up, the mob is paralyzed, but the mob still believes that everything is just as it always has been. That is the mob's illusion. Because the mob is holding the illusion that everything is just fine, the controllers of the mob look over the mob and say to themselves, "Sure, there are some problems, but the mob is fine." The mob's illusion is passed on to the controllers.

Cataclysmic Failure of the Machine

Finally, there comes the straw that breaks the camel's back: The whole system collapses because it has never happened this way before. Yet, the controllers are in charge of directing the mob. How could they let that happen? The banks were caught completely off guard, not because they didn't know, but because the bank needed a completely different solution. The further down the track the banks went, the deeper into the abyss they went. Some of the biggest have toppled like a house of cards.

Again, the cry goes out, "But the controllers were in charge of the masses. How could they let this happen?"

The next step is to recognize what mechanism has been used to move or control the masses recently. This is done mostly by fear. But fear paralyzes. Don't the controllers know that? From the Fear Mongering Controllers' point of view, it was working perfectly, because the mob had become so placid and easy to control!

Fear Mongers Take the Mob for Granted

The mentality of the masses had become a 'what do you want me to do, boss?' attitude, and fearful of saying anything that might get them in trouble with the controllers. Independent thinking is the elusive element in the masses that keeps the mob from derailing itself. It tends to be a self-righting feature. But when people are mentally paralyzed by fear to the point that they are always asking direction and having a 'Save us from ourselves, O Powerful One!' attitude, that's when the system is doomed to fail.

The Fear Mongers – Who Are They?

So, what embodies the oh-so-powerful Fear Mongering Controllers? By now, it should be obvious – government, banks, the oil industry, and of course, the media. The media are there because they are the liaison between the other three and the public, and bad news sells! And really bad news sells even better! The oil industry played their part only recently, but the governments and the banks have been doing it as a matter of ongoing business.

When politicians draw people to them, using the banner that they will save them from the things they fear, take a step back and think twice. Unfortunately, as a major election looms, the war cry is, "I'll save you better than the other guy!" How ironic!

Fear, As a Tool, Bites the Hand That Feeds it!

The true irony of this story is that, as Fear Mongers control people by inducing fear, eventually the fear becomes paralysis, to the point that the Fear Mongers have completely defeated the purpose they set out to accomplish. Their short-sightedness has cost them dearly. Now as they continue to promulgate more fear, the mob will eventually turn on them. (There are undercurrents and rumors that this is already happening.)

What can I do?

Now, what do you plan to do about it? There are many things you can do, but there is definitely something that you, and everyone else, should do (in my opinion) – learn Mental Photography! Learn how to ZOX! How can you contemplate being able to think for yourself when you have nothing but ‘junk’ information to start with? Mental Photography gives you the ability to cover allot of ground fast!

Whether you think you have bought into ‘how things are’ or deny it, doesn’t matter because the actions of the masses are overriding good, intelligent decision-making. You will still be affected by others. On a personal level, you could be forming your strategies for your future. Are you going to let everyone else dictate your future? Use this time wisely, and you will be much better for it! Get clear, real information on which you can use to base your decisions.

In Part 1 of this series on fear, I discussed how you can use Mental Photography to diminish fear when dealing with poisonous critters. Well there other vile, poisonous critters out there, but these critters affect your wealth, your convenience, your freedoms, and many other things. You can either be ‘in the know’ with your level of clear information to guide you, or you are a ‘mushroom’ – you will be in the dark, and fed sh*t.

Learn to use your brain, strengthen your mind, and recover the cognitive abilities you were born with. It is your Divine inheritance. Mental Photography (ZOX) is the key to accessing these for yourself.

7: Did You Know Children Are Born Geniuses?

Photographic Memory - Children Born Genius!

(The Photographic Memory is also known as the “Eidetic Memory”)

I feel that I have a responsibility to reveal certain secrets to you, secrets that hold you back from your success.

Have you ever wondered about photographic memory? What would you think if I told you that you were born with a photographic memory? Some people carry over the photographic memory into adulthood. If you are not one of these people, why didn't you carry it over as an adult?

Stand by to be shocked!

The answer to this is reading!

We were all born with a photographic memory. We never lose it. We have just lost the ability to use it. Actually, more correctly, we've misplaced the access to it.

You learned phenomenal things as a small child – languages, social skills, etc. – then you went to school and were taught a superior way to learn, or so we are led to believe. Statistics show that once we enter school, based on the rote-memory system, learning slows down from that point on.

So, what is the primary thing that changed? You learned how to read! By learning through reading, no matter how ineffective it may be for you, you were force-fed learning by reading, or you were ostracized. You were considered a renegade! Some of those renegades are the same people that have carried over their photographic memory as an adult.

You see, the mechanics of learning to read act as entrenched tunnel vision, directly opposing your natural ability to access and utilize the photographic memory. By learning by reading, a learned brain function, you gave up your access to the natural brain function of photographic memory.

Solution: You can learn how to access your natural photographic memory again by learning Mental Photography (from www.zoxpro.com). What's even more amazing is that, while you are learning how to access your photographic memory, you start to see many other things start happening from exercising your brain this way.

You wonder why your children are geniuses and you are not? Now you know!

8: Here Is Yet More Proof Your Photographic Memory Is Alive And Well

Proof of the Adult Photographic Memory Hiding in the Shadows of Autism

Insights from a different world:

Do you have a photographic memory?

Do you know how to manage your brain?

Is your mind clear for decision-making?

[Please note: What you are about to read may not seem like it applies to you. I am shedding light on the topic so that you can see it applies to everyone. Please don't miss this information.]

The following is a description of the content of a television documentary, which I have annotated:

The series explored remarkable tales of human experience, including the story of Flo and Kay, the world's only female autistic savant twins. Savantism is a rare condition in which sufferers of developmental disorders, often autism, are capable of acts of genius that far outstrip their expected levels of ability. In Flo and Kay's case, they each have extraordinary memories for facts and dates. Through interviews with several medical professionals, “Extraordinary People: The Rainman Twins” attempt to expose the truth behind this oft-misunderstood condition. Describing themselves as “human computers,” Flo and Kay can access their memories and make calculations more efficiently than most people.

It was refreshing to see such a unique documentary. I would love to someday have the opportunity to compare my notes and observations of the documentary to the case study notes made by the medical professionals. The twins have been under observation for 15 years, but the documentary was less than two hours long. Obviously, many things were skipped over to consolidate that much material.

My observations are based on important information revealed in the documentary. By cross-comparison with other autistic studies I have perused, there are certain trends, patterns, and repetitious themes that I have observed, that have also appeared in this documentary. The following editorial, and the conclusions made, are therefore not without some level of justification. Please don’t vilify me if I am not 100% correct. 100% of the information was not available.

A recent documentary of twin autistic savants has given us a wonderful glimpse into their lives. The “human computers,” Flo and Kay, can access their memories and make calculations more efficiently than most people. (“Most people” meaning about 98% of all people.) Even more meaningful, it gives us a glimpse into ourselves and our potential, without all the inherent distractions of the world we live in and the distorted image it creates.

These two sisters are referred to as the “Rainman Twins,” from their ability to calculate various time relationships and events, such as time, date, day, weather, who was present, what they said (exactly) what they ordered or had for a meal, minute details of comments on the food, how much was eaten, etc. They can remember all the songs, verbatim, on any album they have ever heard. This uncanny ability has been heavily documented for the last 15 years of their life by a UK Reporter. (Applause for such a commendable act for following not one, but two people lives for 15 incredible years!)

Some interesting things about the twins being autistic: They had a set routine with a very limited amount of change, or outside influence to change. Changes had devastating effects on them. As a result, they did not have much input outside of what they were accustomed to, nor did they need to make many decisions each day.

By comparison, the average person has many decisions to make each day. Studies have been done that confirms that clinical depression is quite often a symptom of having too many decisions to make each day. Just to select a single cheese or deli meat to buy, we have a selection of more than 10 in each category. If you take the time to realize how many decisions you make each day, the number is staggering. Eventually, our 'system' of decision making breaks down, leading to depression.

As an example, the decision of choices between cheeses may start with the amount of money you may need to spend to get the cheese you want versus another cheese that is only passable. What about the quantity involved – any on-sale pricing? What if they didn't have the cheese you wanted to buy in the first place, and you need to select another? Is it any wonder why people don't want to leave their home? It just becomes all too hard. A society of agoraphobes!

Back to the twins: When you don't need to make all those decisions each day, your thinking process doesn't become so clouded.

Do memories fade over time and with age, or is the brain a highly-dynamic structure that keeps our memories intact exactly as they were? This is a question that has been hotly debated in regard to the Photographic Memory we are born with. Does it really carry over all the clear memories of our past? Even though, every seven years, every cell in our body is replaced and we are literally a 'new' person every seven years, that argument would suggest we could only carry the memories that we had for up to seven years. I think we all know that one is not true.

Another way it has been looked at is the physical structure: The number of brain cells, interactions, patterns of interaction, the dying of synapses that are not heavily used, to leave unattended gaps where there used to be connections. Again, if that were true, we again would not be able to remember details many years later with detail. But again, that's not true.

Well, the argument continues, it must be the combination of things that instigate the breakdown of the brain cells: Less oxygen to the brain, pollutants, drugs, alcohol consumption, all the things that destroy brain cells. Well, finally something logical, right? Instead of a focused argument, let's use a hand-grenade to meet our objective – to win the argument at all costs.

But, enter stage right not just one, but two autistic savants, and they are identical twins, and they have virtually all the same dynamics and parameters by which they live. They can easily finish each other's sentences, based on memories of what happened many years before. Their memories are that unbelievably clear, because they don't have distractions!

What do I mean when I say they don't have distractions? I am saying that the amount of distractions they have each day is minimal. Only big distractions, such as a death of someone close to them or moving to another house, causes them to be distracted from their routine. In an easier way to look at it, they have remained clear-minded, not muddled. And they are happy!

They will never truly be unhappy for long, because they will never suffer lengthy bouts of depression – because they are not expected to make the number of decisions that you or I make each day. Studies show that when we have more than seven things to choose from, our brain goes into overload. How many different cheeses? One hundred, even 200 or more?

Let us re-engage the age-old argument again about our memories and the breakdown of our brain cells with age. The “Rainman Twins” are not young. If that argument is an absolute, then the twins should show some sign of that breakdown. But, they don’t! Not at all! This is the one clear example that puts that argument to bed, six feet under, with the gravestone on top! The “smoking gun”!

If our memories could not be kept forever in a “dynamic” brain structure that reorganizes the information as other pathways are made redundant, then these autistic savant twins could not do what they easily show everyone what they can do, without hesitation.

Do we have the ability to retain the memory of our whole life, with detail? Yes!

But, why can they easily show it and most of us cannot? Because we are the ones that are muddled, we are the confused ones, we are the ones that have mistreated, abused, and disorganized ourselves. We are the ones that need clarity!

What can we do to reclaim our memory?

What can we do to stimulate the building of new physical memory?

What can we do to strengthen the neural connections to both new and old memories?

What can we do to improve our memory overall?

What can we do to clean out the cobwebs?

What can we do to gain clarity?

What can we do to clear out old obsolete thoughts that cloud our mind?

What can we do to make decisions effectively?

What can we do to make our brain stronger and more resilient?

Mental Photography!!!

9: Here Is Another Proof Your Photographic Memory Is Just Hiding

Part 2 - Autism and the Adult Photographic Memory

In the previous chapter, I wrote about twin autistic savants (referred to as the “Rainman Twins”) who could remember everything, down to the finest detail, of their entire lives. The chapter pointed out the different lifestyle they lead in comparison to the majority of the populace. The most outstanding difference was the lack of decision-making. They simply didn’t need to make decisions on a daily basis like most people must. They adhered to a regimen, and if something happened that changed their routine, it had disastrous effects.

I now have something else to reveal to you that has been passed on to me by one of my clients. Another autistic savant, Stephen Wiltshire, who is referred to as the “Human Camera” draws entire cityscapes from memory. From his unique abilities, he has been encouraged to create a business by supportive family members.

A reoccurring theme that I have observed from the documented cases of savants that I have seen, is that most of the savants have some form of autism, and tend to be anti-social – they have problems when they must interact with other people. Stephen Wiltshire expresses this problem too, as he didn't learn to talk until the age of 5, and was not conversant until the age of 9, which is revealed in a video clip, linked to below:

<http://video.stumbleupon.com/#p=0k4lsi1dql>

As the previous chapter pointed out, there is plenty of proof that the adult photographic memory is alive and well and doing a lot of great things for people. The second most profound concurrence, and more important in my opinion, is the more you can mentally isolate yourself from the daily trappings of the normal plethora of distractions, the easier it becomes to tap into your natural abilities such as the photographic memory.

10: If You Lived To Be 500 Years Old

Some more information on this fascinating topic.....

From a recently-published article: “If you lived to be 500 years old, you might stand a chance to read all the articles on Wikipedia or a quarter of the books on Amazon.com.”

Unfortunately, we do not live to 500, and would need a fortune to buy half of the books on Amazon.com. So, how about a solution that fits into one lifetime and you can use within a few days to gather all the knowledge you could ever desire!

At this moment, there are over 5 million articles on Wikipedia, or over 10 billion words of information and knowledge. There’s an even bigger number of books (and another million published each year) that you can buy on Amazon.com and that’s well over 100 billion words of information. An average reader can get through 250 words per minute. Don’t worry – we’re counting how fast you read right now!

So, an average reader would take around 371 years to read Wikipedia if it were his or her full-time job. By now, I am sure you are getting the idea that to read – and more importantly – to learn that amount of information is impossible.

Not so! Not only is it possible, but it has been done for over 35 years and you didn’t even know about it.

We’ve all heard that we only use up to 2% of our brain’s potential (and that’s the “smart” people, such as you and me). We've also heard that, as kids, we absorb and learn such vast amounts of information it's almost impossible to imagine as adults. We learn walking, talking, eating, drinking, running, playing, learning social skills, language, etc., etc., etc.! The question is: Why can't we do this as adults?

The answer is: We can! We just aren't taught to.

Mental Photography is the primary vehicle that expediently creates a very strong rapport between the conscious and the subconscious. It opens many doors to our vast potential by building these bridges. As a learning tool, it allows people to assimilate information at a hundred times the average reading speed with 100% retention for life. But, this is not limited to learning. More importantly, it opens a pathway to a part of the brain that has fantastic abilities. This part of the brain acts as a conduit to universal energies. Brain Management (previously called "Subliminal Dynamics" in the United States) gives you the tools to take control of your life like never before.

Everybody knows that Albert Einstein, Sir Isaac Newton, Thomas Edison and Nikola Tesla used these techniques without even knowing about them. Don't you want to possess skills like Einstein!?

As the Information Age is fully realized by the information capacities of newest computers, the next step must be the "Mental Revolution." To simply "keep up" is not good enough. Only by getting back to assimilating information as a small child would, can we ever hope to hold our own in today's fast paced market. By achieving this with the Brain Management system, we can take a sufficient chunk out of the stress we endure. By strengthening and toning the brain in this natural way, we can create a better, healthier, and happier life.

Everyone was born with this ability to absorb huge amounts of information and knowledge switched on. You used it for the first 5 years of your life. And then, something terrible happens! You go to school!

Does school give us a superior way to learn?

“Reading” is taught in opposition to Mental Photography. When you were taught to read, this ability was switched off. Reading does not work for everyone because it is not a natural ability. Reading uses a ‘slow, inefficient’ part of the brain. Mental Photography is natural – it uses the “whole” brain.

The best news of all is that you never lose it! We have been teaching Mental Photography since 1975, when Richard Welch first found it.

Richard Welch is the “Father of Mental Photography”

Some of you may ask how is this different to “Photoreading.” There are many answers to this question, but the best is probably summed up by NASA itself, which performed a study on Photoreading. which you can read for yourself at http://ntrs.nasa.gov/archive/nasa/casi.ntrs.nasa.gov/20000011599_2000009345.pdf

In January of 2000, Dr. Danielle S. McNamara submitted a preliminary report to the NASA Ames Research Center on photoreading. To conclude the study, McNamara noted that, “In terms of words per minute (wpm) spent reading, there was no difference between normal reading (M = 114 wpm) and PhotoReading (M=112 wpm). So why is it that so many people tout photoreading?” In her conclusion, McNamara states that, “One aspect of the PhotoReading technique is that it leaves the reader with a false sense of confidence.” (Wikipedia, 2008)

The Brain Management course is much more than reading or speed-reading – it’s a holistic approach to increasing the usage of your wonderful brain. Because Richard Welch’s technology was the first, and the only original, it has stood the test of 30+ years and no such discredit, as above, exists.

Mental Photography itself enhances the experience of reading. The average reading speed is 250 words per minute (wpm). Mental Photography begins at 25,000 wpm. During the training you are tested on recall at 52,000 wpm. Proficient Mental Photographers show up to 600,000 words per minute with 90% recall (just turning pages). The impact of Mental Photography is 100 times reading something. So if you are an avid reader, it will definitely enhance your experience of reading after you Mentally Photograph the book first. You have barely scratched the surface of what your brain is capable of doing!

And even more powerful is the way that Mental Photography exercises the brain! The benefits start from:

- Elevated Whole Brain Activity
- Strengthens neural pathways
- Hemispheric Balancing
- Heightened communication between the conscious and the subconscious
- Grow more memory (Dendrites)
- Quicker and clearer thinking. But let’s talk about

TANGIBLE benefits, something you can use to your benefit today:

- Business owners and Entrepreneurs gain important skills in decision-making, problem-solving, time management, and stress management
- Learn English, Mandarin, French – any language faster than you ever thought possible
- Learn math, science, chemistry or biology – in fact, any subject whatsoever in record time
- Mentally Photograph all your text books - whether you're at school, college or post-graduate course
- Prepare for high school exams, or for Ph.D. exams in hours instead of weeks
- And many more limitless opportunities to expand your mind and your knowledge
- Solve Complex Problems and Questions by allowing your brain to naturally find solutions through your natural neural networks
- Improve your driving with 360 degree perception
- And many more

This information has been presented during the last 30 years in a live seminar. Of course, you can continue reading and learning the way humanity has done so for the last 6,000 years or so. If you think that's the most efficient way, no problem. We'll leave you to it.

Humanity first learned to "read" about 6,000 years ago – first for stock keeping (before this they would use devices like knots on a rope), then for other uses.

That doesn't make it efficient.

Due to its very nature, reading actually slows down the minds capabilities. By the way, this page has 1,202 words and it has taken you over 4 minutes to read it.

Information overload – how to cope with it...

11: Mental Photography, Subliminal Photography

By now, you have been hearing about Mental Photography, and are probably thinking, “What is Mental Photography?” I am pleased to give you this chapter that goes into some detail about it. Your brain stands to gain great abilities. It is up to me to reveal some of those mind-shattering truths. For your own mental health, please read on...

Mental Photography

“Mental Photography” is also known as “Subliminal Photography” in the United States.

Ask yourself,...

“What can be better than reading?”

How about 10,000% better than reading??

Would you like to:

Assimilate information at least one hundred times the average reading speed???

With 100% retention for life????

and one hundred times the impact of reading... ??????

Right now I could say something silly, like “You’ll never guess...” but I am not going to, because if you are reading this I’ve deduced that you’re intelligent. I am not going to insult your intelligence by saying such an absurd thing.

From Mind to Mind (MINDtoMIND.com), please take the time to enjoy what this information holds for you. Many years of development have given us a product that we want to shout about from the highest mountains. Please read on...

Mental Photography / Subliminal Photography

Mental Photography / Subliminal Photography is the primary vehicle that expediently creates a very strong rapport between the conscious and the subconscious. It opens many doors to our vast potential by building these bridges. As a learning tool, it allows people to assimilate information at 100 times the average reading speed with 100% retention for life. But, this is not limited to learning. More importantly, it opens a pathway to a part of the brain that has fantastic abilities. This part of the brain acts as a conduit to universal energy.

Brain Management

gives you the tools to take control of your life like never before.

A Mental Revolution - Brain Management

As the Information Age is fully realized by the information capacities of newest computers the next step must be the "Mental Revolution." To simply "keep up" is not good enough. Only by getting back to assimilating information as a small child would, can we ever hope to hold our own in today's fast-paced market. By achieving this with the Brain Management system, we can take a sufficient chunk out of the stress we endure. By strengthening and toning the brain in this natural way. We can create a better, healthier, and happier life.

What is Mental Photography?

Everyone was born with this ability switched on. You used it for the first 5 years of your life.

Why don't I use Mental Photography now?

Reading is taught in opposition to Mental Photography. When you were taught to read the ability was switched off. Reading does not work for everyone because it is NOT a natural ability.

Mental Photography is natural.

Can I learn Mental Photography again?

YES! It is a natural ability you were born with. You never lose it. Brain Management has been teaching Mental Photography since 1975, when Richard Welch first found it. For over 33 years Brain Management has constantly upgraded the teaching so that its clients can achieve their absolute best results.

Brain Management is the first, and it is still the best!

Richard Welch is the “Father of Mental Photography”

If I learn Mental Photography will I have to give up reading?

No. Mental Photography enhances the experience of reading. The average reading speed is 250 words per minute (wpm). Mental Photography begins at 25,000 wpm.

During the training you are tested on recall at 52,000 wpm. Proficient Mental Photographers can show over 600,000 words per minute with 90% recall (just turning pages). The impact of Mental Photography is 100 times reading something. It will definitely enhance your experience of reading after you Mentally Photograph the book. You have barely scratched the surface of what your brain is capable of doing!

And even more powerful is the way that Mental Photography exercises the brain!

Mental Photography also delivers:

- Elevated whole brain activity
- Strengthens neural pathways
- Hemispheric balancing
- Heightened communication between the conscious and the subconscious
- Grow more memory
- Quicker and clearer thinking

Since I have been relying on reading from age 5, will this get in the way of my Mental Photographing abilities?

This is why Brain Management teaches the comprehensive Brain Management Seminar. The Brain Management Seminar fully explores Mental Photography, its endless uses, attributes, and benefits. You will experience these things during the training and see results. You will know all you need to know about Mental Photography and be able to use it with confidence.

12: Are You Infected With Developmentitis?

Recently, I have had a lot of clients asking me one thing. They have been asking my opinion as to how ZOX Pro Training interacts with other trainings. This led me to realize that with so many trainings available, some people can lose their effectiveness while pursuing the “better me” within.

ZOX Pro Training and Brain Management are very unique in design. Simplistically, our training is easily used to learn and support any other training or mind discipline. Wow! You would ask, “Me? Why?” The answer is not complex or hidden. The answer is Mental Photography (ZOXing).

Since Mental Photography is the first way we learn everything via the eidetic memory (commonly known as the photographic memory), it is the basis of all learning; the benchmark. So no matter what it is you want to learn, if you want to learn it better and easier, use Mental Photography; it’s the natural way to learn.

The second issue that frequently comes up at the same time is people using more than one training at the same time they are learning another. I realize that many people would find a way to justify that course of action. Allow me to provide you a scenario:

Scenario 1: A person is taking a speed reading course, a mega-speed reading course, and is asking about doing Mental Photography at the same time. I am not going to recommend that action. Here is why:

- a. The person cannot tell where their results are coming from. This creates confusion to what is working and what is not.
- b. The person may have conflicting information coming from different trainings. Again, this only adds to the confusion.
- c. ZOX Pro Training (Mental Photography), in this case, is definitely a superior product because of the level of training the person receives. Remember, ZOX Pro Training is actually a “mental discipline.” We approach things very differently with our trainings. We help people make huge gains by helping them change the way they perceive how learning works, or in some cases how it doesn’t work.

Multiple Trainings Cause Confusion

This can easily confuse people who are involved with other trainings that teach things other than what we teach you. We want everyone to have results. We have geared ZOX Pro Training, as well as our other trainings, for results. You may be inhibiting your results by mixed signals from other trainings. If this is happening to you, don’t panic. Again, after you learn our methods, you can apply ZOX Pro Training to all the other trainings afterward, making them easier than ever.

Scenario 2: You have a vocabulary-builder, a memory-enhancer, speed-reading, a meditation schedule, lists of affirmations stuck up everywhere you look, a daily organizer that is meant to keep track of it all (but you never have time to look at it). And so on, and so on...

All these techniques may be good and work as separate devices. But when you put them all together, you find that your life becomes so cluttered, you cannot tell what, if anything, is happening to create that positive life you want.

RECOMMENDED ACTION:

Stop doing other trainings while you are learning ZOX Pro Training. This will give you the best opportunity to really FOCUS on one training instead of the many things that waste your time, confuse you, and inhibit your results.

When you create results from your focused action, you will easily see where they have come from - without question.

KEEP IN MIND:

Since ZOX Pro Training is a mind discipline, it will affect ALL areas of your life. So don't limit yourself by only looking for results in the information area. There are so many other areas of life you need to work on. Look for success in family, relationships, health, wealth, work, prestige, decreasing stress, vocabulary and languages, creativity, decision making, athletic ability and sports, just to point out a few.

So, if you want to prevent yourself from suffering Self-Developmentitis, here is what to do: (Warning: Joke Ahead) Take two ZOX Pro Trainings, give one to a friend, and don't call me in the morning. (You should be too busy making a great life for yourself.)

13: Guruism Vs. Anti-Gurism: What's The Difference?

Www.MindtoMind.com wants you to have somewhere you can go to gain perspective about the self-improvement, self-help industry. This chapter is meant to highlight what I think you should be aware of from a “back-door” point of view. Since I have been around the market for over 20 years, I have seen many things to which you would reply, “No way!” I want to reveal just a few back-end secrets to assist you with your decision making.

You own your own brain! You should care who's handling the input!

Guruism - What is it?

Jay Abraham, a leading world-class marketing guru, strongly suggests to his followers and subscribers to create a following based on price-point marketing almost as much as marketing the products themselves. People like Tony Robbins (of Robbins Research) is a good example of what you can do this way. His organization has created a humongous perpetual motion machine that continually needs to be fed from the masses to give to the masses.

Anthony Robbins is a “Guru” in the Western sense of the word.

One of the techniques used to create your following of people that not only buy from you once, but again and again, is start out low. Give something away 'for free'. This entices your potential audience to get to know you and the product you represent. Then, your prospective buyer can buy something small and inexpensive.

Always leave them wanting.

The objective of this technique is to always lead your customer to their highest expenditure. The way to achieve this is to leave them wanting the 'next bigger thing'. Over time, your client, if you have done your marketing right, will spend thousands, tens of thousands, even hundreds of thousands or more, while going up through the ranks.

Create a sense of belonging.

A "must-have" in your marketing structure is a sense of belonging to a family of like minded followers, a family. You can see this when organizations have various achievement levels, even badges you can wear, so that you can openly tell your peer family what level you've obtained. From multi-level marketing to religious organizations, they all tend towards this strategy to lock you into their way of thinking,

Keeping the clients hot, and strike while the iron is hot!

The objective is for you to keep buying. When you are constantly getting a barrage of information and marketing material: email, mail, phone calls, support calls, opt-ins, etc. for one product line, this is a tell-tale sign that you are now involved with a "Guruistic" organization.

95% of people are followers.

We learned this as children! Follow The Leader. This makes Guru Marketing easy. All you need is plenty of product to sell with chain-step price points, a little marketing know-how, and you too can be the next Tony Robbins.

Something Interesting

I recently heard that Anthony Robbins is no longer a proponent of guruism, and is re-inventing his wheel – to “anti-guruism.”

Independent Thinking

There are organizations that have embraced “anti-guruism” from their inception. I am lucky enough to be affiliated with one of them - Brain Management.

What is “Antiguruism” or “Anti-Guruism”?

An organization that is a proponent of anti-guruism supports objectives such as independent thinking, independent decision making, helping a person operate their life on their own terms.

The system difference.

The main difference you are most likely to notice is that you are taught a complete system that encompasses most things in life, and doesn't leave you needing the “next best thing.” Some of these organizations may have some additional peripheries designed to assist the user with enhancement of the original product. These are good because it allows the user to ‘focus’ in on what they want to improve – and is not a chain-step operation.

The truth is out there.

I will be bringing you more of this type of insightful information with regards to the “self-improvement” industry. Hopefully, with a little insight into the market, you will be able to dodge some bullets and land mines that are out there. At www.MindtoMind.com we want you to be informed.

14: Top 7 Self-Improvement Training Qualities

Whenever you think about self improvement, who are you thinking about? Are you thinking about the person living next door? Are you thinking about the person that is providing the information? Of course not” You are thinking about yourself!

You are thinking about how you can take charge of your life, be an independent thinker, and deciding the steps you want to take in life. It is all about you! So whenever you think about SELF improvement, you really need to take a good look at what that means. Do the trainings you consider use achievable, down-to-earth methodology?

- 1. NATURAL: Whatever you are considering, is it natural? In other words, can your brain automatically do these things once you understand the structure? Are you simply born with it? (Electronic machines and devices are not natural.)
- 2. AUTOMATIC: If you are not automatically using whatever this method is, can it be turned over to the brain to act upon it automatically? This usually goes hand-in-hand with “natural.”
- 3. COMPLETE: Are you presented a complete system? Many organizations makes it part of their marketing to only give you pieces. They will tell you many reasons why they do this. But they will not tell you the truth. The truth is they will make a lot more money from you by segmenting their “system” into sections. They will bring up further trainings and higher and higher price tags as you move up. Even after you have achieved their highest level, you may not find what you were looking for in the first place.

4. FLEXIBLE: Is the system that you are using flexible to assist you in all your struggles? Is it usable throughout your entire life? If you have a system that is natural and automatic, then your benefits will be felt throughout your life.

Many organizations have systems that require you to adapt to their system. Since their system does not adapt to your specific needs, it may not be what you want. Most people prefer a system that adapts to them as an individual.

5. LEARNING: Does your system give you as much access to your brain power as you can ever have? Does your training exercise and strengthen your brain? Does it give you the ability to learn more than ever before? Will it give you the ability to make clearer decisions by cleaning out the mental cobwebs? Will it automatically give you more memory and more access to your memories?

6. SUPPORTING ATTRIBUTES: These are exercises that when combined intensify all of your abilities synergistically. This is often expressed as “child-like wonderment” of your world around you. Does your system do this for you?

7. SIMPLE: Is the system easy to learn and use? Many systems that are available are highly complex and convoluted. You want a system that is straight forward and easy to understand without some archaic language or “special” names used for everyday applications. That just confuses you and makes you reliant on them for your answers.

As you know, there are many systems out there that make claims they can solve all of your problems. If you are experienced with such trainings, you will agree with me that most do not stack up. You may have done so many of these that you have come to expect failure instead of success.

I am going to tell you a big secret: ZOX Pro Training will not solve your problems. You will solve your own problems. We show you how. ZOX Pro Training gives you the complete system for you to achieve your successes. It is geared for you to have results.

ZOX Pro Training even has as the ultimate natural enhancement known to re-establish connection to your photographic (eidetic) memory - Mental Photography! There is no better way to learn more than ever before faster, and exercise your brain at the same time.

As for all the points I mentioned above: ZOX Pro Training answers YES to all of them. You are a whole person. You deserve a whole system that works—from the start!

15: Impeccability – We Have Improved!

You have heard there is always room for improvement. We believe that, too. That is why we have just updated the landing page at ZOX Pro Training with Guide videos! (<http://ZOXpro.com>)

Please take a look for yourself. (The new videos are strategically staged far into the page.)

For our ZOX Pro Training clients, it may not be that interesting, until you have lost your password and are looking for instructions how to get a new one issued to you. It is right there in video support! There are a few other items you may not be overly familiar with, so you may still find it valuable.

We wanted our potential clients (you) to feel unencumbered to make the decision to come on board with ZOX Pro Training. We know, just to embark on the unknown path to purchasing something that is every persons dream, almost sounds too good to be true. And with the stories you hear about doing business on the Internet - Watch Out! We wanted to alleviate your burden when you are dealing with us.

We have created a series of three videos that take you by the hand and guide you through the:

Purchase Process: The steps you through what you do when purchasing.

Registration Process: Again, we hold your hand through this.

Behind the Door of ZOX Pro Training: For you to see how easy it is.

So, this is really great news for our ZOX Pro Training Clients, our ZOX Pro Training Affiliates, and all the rest of the world (6,000,000,000 +) that has not been to ZOXpro.com yet. When they get to ZOXpro.com, it will be easier than ever for them to get through the process without feeling they are taking the typical risk of making purchases over the Internet.

We want you to fixate on learning how to use your brain. Worrying about how to negotiate the Internet is not what you should be focusing on. We want you to learn how to access your eidetic memory, commonly known as your photographic memory, increase memory naturally, tune up your brain to be a stellar decision maker, and leave old outdated learning like 'reading' in the dust, by learning Mental Photography, which we also call ZOXing!

Stay tuned for more good news for your brain, at Mind To Mind - The Brain Accelerator.
